

No.1: 44, 54, 44

No.2 Line 5

No.3 line 9, 10, 11

No.4; y, y is local to the function f and cannot be modified by other functions

No.5; No

No.6; Yes it refers to the x, z which are global in that they can be accessed and modified by any other function

No. 7: 6, 7

No.8; x, is used as an argument when calling the f function at line 10

No. 9; x is a parameter for the f function in that it's used at line 5 and later at line 7 in the body of the function

No.10; The last line commands the interpreter to do nothing